ABOUT FEILDEN FOWLES

Feilden Fowles are an architecture practice based in Waterloo and recent recipients of BD's Public Building Architect and Architect of the Year Gold Award 2021.

Our team of 18 delivers exceptional projects across a range of sectors spanning Education, Arts and Culture, Workplace and Heritage. We have a dynamic, energetic, and inclusive culture based in our unique, award winning studio and garden.

We particularly encourage applications from female, non-binary, LGBTIQA+, non-able bodied, Black, Asian, other Minority Ethnic groups or those candidates who continue to be underrepresented within the architectural profession.

THE ROLE

With several exciting project opportunities on the horizon, we are seeking a talented Senior Architect to join our award-winning team and contribute towards a number of heritage and cultural projects across the studio. The ideal candidate should have 5+ years PQE and must be comfortable working across a range of sectors and scales in tandem with direct job running responsibilities, including internal team management and presentations to clients. Candidates should be able to demonstrate broad experience across RIBA work stages, and evidence excellent design skills, attention to detail and creative problem solving. Experience in Revit and a Conservation accreditation or experience are preferable but not essential qualities.

Key Responsibilities - include but are not limited to:

- . Leading project team, stakeholders and consultants effectively on large scale projects across all RIBA stages
- . Production and review of technical detailing, information, and working/drawing information packages for tender and construction
- . Forming strong client relationships and leading presentations
- . Ensuring risk, quality and best practice guidelines are met

- . Coordination of information across consultant, client and construction teams
- . Acting as key point of contact for internal and external project related queries
- . Contributing to the studio's identity, design ethos and low-tech philosophy
- . Working closely with directors and associates ensuring that projects are run within agreed resources and timeframes
- . Maintaining personal and professional development, keeping up to date with latest statutory regulations
- . Supporting project runners across the studio with technical and delivery queries
- . Supporting new work bids as required

Key Skills and Competencies:

- . Experience of running and delivering substantial projects
- . High level of skill in detailing and production of construction information
- . Strong presentation and time management skills
- . Knowledge of delivering both traditional and design & build projects
- . Experience working with historic buildings. Conservation accreditation is desirable (RIBA or equivalent) but not essential.
- . Commitment to producing exemplary design and delivering high quality buildings.
- . Revit experience is desirable but not essential - training can be provided
- . Experience in contract administration – desirable but not essential
- . Knowledge of UK Building Regulations, safety requirements and industry standards

Person Specification

- . Successful candidate must be a creative problem solver who is confident and self-motivated.
- . Confident leader with excellent communication and organisational skills
- . Eligible to work in the UK

Benefits

- . Competitive salary (dependent on experience)
- . 20 Days holiday (increasing up to 25 days)
- . Yearly studio trip
- . Weekly office drinks

- . Personal development budget
